About this piece

By a British workshop, a copper wall plate aligned to the Arts and Crafts movement (1880–1910), c.1900. The round dish is worked in repoussé with bold, scrolling foliate forms radiating from a recessed centre (boss). A ring of punched dots reads as faux-rivets, while a planished field and raised rim give clear definition to the motif. The scale suits single display or a grouped wall arrangement with other copperware, typical of domestic Arts and Crafts interiors.
