About this piece

Edward William Godwin (attributed), possibly for Liberty and Co. A mahogany oblong table, with splay ring-turned supports, 75cm high, 80cm wide, 55cm deep. Godwin worked in the dress department at Liberty's and there have been two tea/coffee tables identical to the William Watt ones which have appeared on the market with Liberty and Co. labels. It is thought that Godwin may have designed some pieces and certainly influenced furniture design at Liberty's in the late Victorian period. See Sotheby's with Paul Reeves 'The Best of British Design from the 19th and 20th Centuries: The Selling Exhibition' PR 32 for a washstand with similar leg treatment.
