About this piece

Edward Barnsley for the Rural Industries Bureau

A super quality Cotswold style walnut dining table with eight matching dining chairs made at Loughborough College in the 1950's. The table has cross band inlaid walnut details to the perimeter of the table top. The construction of the dining table has a sculptured soft feel with double through tenon details to the upper and lower stretchers and exposed dowel details at all the joints.

The armchairs have sculptured curvaceous arms, and all of the chairs feature exposed finger joints to the top corners, along with a further sculptured subtle detail to the back legs where they meet the seat.
